Administrative history

As the content of this fonds is currently limited to the records from the Stony Beach, a complete admin history of the Canadian National Railway has not been completed and the history is limited to the records of the Stony Beach series.

On November 1, 1912, the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway arrived in Stony Beach, Saskatchewan as construction proceeded from Regina to Moose Jaw with that portion of the line officially opening on December 16, 1911.

A station was constructed. Station agents at various times were Cutler, D. Steele, A. Ward and Russ McCammon.

In the early 1920's, the Grand Trunk lines in Western Canada were taken over by Canadian National Railways.

The station was closed in 1958 and torn down in 1974.
